BREAKING FREE OF PLASTIC

Mother Earth has a big problem with plastic. For the sake of convenience, we are swamping the Earth with plastic bags that are mostly non-biodegradable. It is estimated that there are as many as one trillion plastic bags in circulation annually<sup>1</sup> with approximately 300 million of these plastic bags ending up in the Atlantic Ocean<sup>1</sup>, endangering sea life, especially mammals who may mistake the floating plastic bag as jellyfishes. Deaths of sea life involving plastic bags are increasing by the year.<sup>1</sup>

Researches show that an average plastic bag needs about hundreds of years to break down.<sup>1</sup> The most common way to dispose these plastic bags is to burn them, which in turn releases toxic gasses that harms the atmosphere.<sup>1</sup> In an effort to combat this problem, the Selangor state government has decided that all retailers and vendors must go plastic-free beginning January 2017 and they are required to pledge their commitment to go polystyrene and single-use plastic-free when they apply or renew their business licenses with their local council. Customers who need a plastic bag are required to pay a levy of RM0.20 for each bag. If retailers and vendors fail to comply with this policy, a maximum fine of RM1,000 will be imposed as the standard amount for any breach of license condition.<sup>2</sup>

Where does the RM0.20 levy go?

The RM0.20 collected from every sale of plastic bag will go to the retailer. The retailers are encouraged to channel the proceeds to charity and conservation efforts for the environment.<sup>3</sup>

MAKE IT A HABIT

Bringing your own recyclable bags and food containers may be an inconvenience especially in the first few months, but it is just a matter of time before you get used to the idea. Here are some great tips to make your transition a little easier.

Have Enough Reusable Bags

Stock up on some sturdy cotton bags that can withstand the bulk of your groceries. Once you have enough, it is easy to keep them everywhere. Less chances of you forgetting to bring them along with you! <sup>1</sup>

Wash Your Bag Once in a While

'Wet' groceries like meat, seafood and vegetables may be messy and it is best to give these bags a wash with mild detergent after every use. This way, you will not cross contaminate any foods or come back to a smelly car. <sup>1</sup>

Stash Them in All Your Cars and Bags

The trick is to have the bags in all your cars, all the time. Buy some foldable ones and stash a few in your handbag as well so you are well prepared for impromptu purchases. Once you get home with your groceries, make it a point to unload your purchases and place the bags back into your car or handbag. This is the best way to have your reusable bags with you all the time. <sup>1</sup>

Reap The Benefits

Besides doing good for the environment, bringing your own reusable bags may also have other benefits. For example, Tesco is giving out extra points<sup>2</sup> for those who bring their own bags and you are able to accumulate points to get rebates on your next purchase.

Going Old School

It is long known that bits of plastic can get into our food from plastic containers in a process called 'leaching' or 'migration'.<sup>3</sup> Though not much research has been published on this potential risk<sup>3</sup>, we should do our part by ensuring that our food touch as little plastic as possible by bringing our own tiffin carrier or reusable food containers to take away food.

ZERO WASTE

Living with zero waste can be defined as diverting 90% of your own rubbish from landfills, with the remaining 10% accounting for items that are unavoidable. Rubbish are items that cannot be reused or recycled but that does not mean that you should consume large amount of recyclables just because they can be recycled.<sup>1</sup> It is important to consume and use resources mindfully and intentionally.

It may seem difficult to make this lifestyle change, but with a little determination this lifestyle will bring a brighter future for the next generation. Use the 5R model to help your family make these changes.

Benefits of Reducing Plastic

It is difficult to measure the impact of existing plastic bag bans but some initial findings look promising. A plastic bag tax levied in Ireland in 2002 has reportedly led to a 95% reduction in plastic bag litter.<sup>3</sup>

To reduce is to recognise that some things are difficult to refuse but we can often make the choice to reduce the amount we consume.<sup>1</sup>

Say no to things you don't need. Stop mindless consumption and buying things for the sake of owning things.<sup>1</sup>

Putting your food waste into a compost bin can help divert about 30% of food waste from your garbage. Compost can help create nutrient-rich soil for your garden and reduce landfill.<sup>2</sup> Apart from that, with a little time and green thumb, you can even grow your own vegetables! Head on to this website, eartheasy.com/grow\_compost.html for instructions on how to build your own compost.

Recycling is the second last option for dealing with waste. Though recycling an item can divert it from landfills, do note that recycling uses a large amount of resources. If you have been Refusing, Reducing and Reusing enough, you will realise that you may have nothing to recycle.<sup>1</sup>

To reuse is the next best thing we can do to prevent waste. This may include repairing or repurposing the item or to swap with someone else to reuse.<sup>1</sup>
